

AERO CORPORAL PUT IN AN ARMY PRISON

Frank Gorey Arrested for Interview Complaining Recruits Were Duped.

FAVES A COURT-MARTIAL

Comrades Who Backed His Charges Ask to Be Locked Up With Him.

MINNOLA, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Corporal Frank Gorey, a member of the Federal National Guard Aero Company, now in camp on the Hempstead Plains aviation field, was arrested today by Federal soldiers and taken to the army lock-up at Fort Totten. The basis for the arrest was the interview published in THE SUN last Saturday, in which Corporal Gorey said he and his company had been duped into joining the National Guard under promise that they would be taught aviation.

The arrest was ordered by Lieut. Joseph E. Carberry, U. S. A., administration officer at the army aviation school here.

The prisoner was sent to Fort Totten because there is no military prison at the camp. Corporal Gorey was the spokesman selected by twenty-two of the guardsmen, and the remainder of the company may be arrested, although that is doubtful.

The charge against Corporal Gorey is that he violated section 62 of the Articles of War. This is a general section dealing with "disrespectful military principles and discipline," and Corporal Gorey will be tried by a general court-martial.

Thorough Inquiry On.
"We are making a very thorough investigation of the matter here," Lieut. Carberry told THE SUN tonight. "We are taking up each point in THE SUN's article, item by item, and are examining with all the men whose names appeared in the story as agreeing to the interview with Corporal Gorey. The investigation will be impartial and absolute justice will be done."

Nearly all the twenty-two men who are being examined were present when Corporal Gorey gave the interview to THE SUN last Saturday, and they gave their names to be published as evidence that they subscribed to what he said. The men said they had answered an advertisement that appeared in THE SUN on September 5 offering an "exceptional opportunity for a bright young man to learn aviation."

When they enlisted, they said, they were told they would be taught to fly, that they would get $21 a month and all expenses, including clothing and equipment. They said they were not being taught to fly and that a United States army officer on duty at the field had told one of them that their chances were "mighty slim."

Instead of $21 a month they said they were getting $15, that they worked in their civilian clothes when they first went to the camp and were without mess kits until one of the officers bought them kits out of his own pocket.

Interview Is Substantiated.
It is understood that all the men examined today told the examining officer that the statements were substantially correct in every detail, and they made no objection when they were asked to take an oath to that effect. When Corporal Gorey was arrested, some of the men who were associated with him in the movement asked to be arrested also, saying the statements were all true.

When the interviews were given, the men said, they gave it knowing that, should they be caught, they would be sent to the military prison at Fort Totten. They said they were not being taught to fly and that a United States army officer on duty at the field had told one of them that their chances were "mighty slim."

Major Monson Morris, N. G. N. Y., who had charge of recruiting the squadron, reported to Adj. Gen. Stetson yesterday the publication of THE SUN's article that he had not told the men they would be taught to fly and that he had told them they would receive $21 a month.

The court-martial of Corporal Gorey will be conducted by a representative of the Judge Advocate General, and probably will be held in the near future either at Governors Island or Fort Totten.

BILTMORE SUED FOR $150,000.

Widow of Hotel Guest Charges Negligence Caused Death.

Suit for $150,000 was brought against the proprietors of the Hotel Biltmore yesterday by Mrs. Elise Cutler McCullum, widow of Duncan McCullum, a wealthy resident of Mississippi, on the ground that when her husband was fatally injured in an elevator accident at the hotel on January 20 neither the police nor his mother and sister, who were also staying at the hotel and who made urgent inquiry as to his whereabouts, were notified immediately.

McCullum, according to his widow's affidavit, was taken to a room which was not his own, but no ambulance was summoned. He died four days later.

The complaint charges the Hotel Biltmore, owners of the hotel, with being responsible for carelessness in the operation of the elevator.

TELLS OF INSURANCE SWindle.
Caswell's Evidence for the State Results in an Indictment.

Robert E. Caswell, the former auditor for the Globe Indemnity Company, who turned State's evidence when he was arrested on the charge of being one of a ring which swindled the company out of $400,000 by passing spurious claims for damages on automobiles insured with the company, was taken before the Grand Jury yesterday.

As a result, William E. Stark, recently arrested, was indicted for grand larceny in the first degree. Caswell said that Stark had purposely driven an insured car into a telegraph pole and the company had paid excessive damages on it.

Half a dozen others have already been indicted for their alleged part in the many swindles of which the company was the victim.

15 HURT ON NEW HAVEN ROAD.
Freight and Passenger Trains in Collision Near New Canaan.

NEW CANAAN, Conn., Oct. 24.—Fifteen passengers were hurt today in a collision between a freight and a passenger train on the New Canaan-Stamford branch of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad about a mile outside New Canaan.

Both trains were drawn by electric locomotives. None of the passengers was seriously injured.

DIVORCE SUIT WON BY AIMEE CROCKER

Referee Recommends Decree Against Prince Alexander Miskinoff.

TO BE FREE IN 3 MONTHS

Heirless to Retain Title and Won't Marry Again, Her Lawyer Says.

The Princess Aimee Crocker Miskinoff, whose other names are Ashe, Gillig and Gouraud, may soon be legally free from her fourth husband, the young and dashing Prince Alexander Miskinoff, and at liberty to marry for the fifth time, if she wishes. A referee's report recommending that her plea for divorce be granted was filed yesterday with Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum, which the Prince received in untroubled silence.

As John C. Olden, attorney for the Princess, did not expect that the Russian nobleman would spoil things by opposing the referee's report, Justice Greenbaum is expected to sign the interlocutory decree, and in three months the "miserable woman," as her counsel described her, will have her soul unshackled from matrimony once more.

Proceedings for a separation were instituted in the Supreme Court early this year by the Prince, whose cup of woe was overflowing on learning that the little Princess Verein, whom he had believed had been born to him by his wife, was his child only by courtesy of an orphan asylum. The heirless to the fortune of Bryant Crocker of San Francisco, bringing a counter suit, alleged that the Prince had been much more than a foster step or other kind of father toward Yvonne Gouraud, her seventeen-year-old adopted daughter.

Yvonne Causes a Jam.
Yvonne, who had been living with her abroad when she decided to try life as a Princess with Miskinoff in 1914, caused quite a jam in court by appearing at the trial of the suits, when Miskinoff stated that he had carefully explained to her that he could not marry her, no matter how much she asked for the favor, because he was already married to her mother. Later a reconciliation was effected, possibly through the soothing influence of the ham sandwiches and pumpkin pie on which the Prince banqueted at the court house lunch counter.

The trio went back to their apartments at the Hotel Netherlands, and for two whole months the Prince, as indicated by the least sign that he thought Yvonne was pretty. Then, according to the testimony before the referee, the Prince moved to the floor below, though there were plenty of elevators to take him up the extra flight. Yvonne was packed off to the country to visit her mother, and the Princess called in detectives to learn why the Prince had experienced a change of heart with regard to the floor.

In the course of discovering this one day they careered after the Prince in a taxicab through Central Park, and after losing the gasoline cent on Broadway, picked it up in a nearby hotel. After entering a room there unannounced they found the Prince, they reported, and received a shock. A young dark haired woman was also present, they said, but the shock seemed to be in the fact that the Princess had mentioned a blonde and not a brunette.

Prince's Feelings Hurt.
Both the Prince and the woman, according to the detective's description, were attired in the lightest of informal evening dress. After an explosion of French from the Prince a general wrestling match ensued, with no holds barred. The young woman, it was said, jumped into a closet and tried a few screams. When several platoons of belabored rascals in their found the Prince with bruises inflicted by no one who was visible.

The Princess brought suit for divorce, but the correspondent was simply referred to at the hearings as "an obscure woman." This appeared to hurt the Prince to the quick, for he declared at the hearing that it was unjust to accuse a man of his rank of becoming acquainted with an obscure woman or acquiring a battered face because of her.

Counsel for the Princess, who will retain her title, was of the opinion that she would do as she don a bridal veil. All she wants, according to her lawyer, is to go to the country in order to be a literary person and rest up from her past married life. As for the Prince, well, the Prince is the Prince, and nobody knows what he'll do.

Scene of $45,000 Gem Robbery; Mother and Daughter Drugged

EXTERIOR view of residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gray Griswold of Roslyn, L. I., looted by automobile burglars early yesterday morning after the sleeping occupants had been drugged. Entrance was forced through the smaller door on the right of the picture. The jewels were taken from the second story room just over the larger and more ornamental door on the left of the photograph. The top portrait is that of Mrs. Griswold, victim of the robbery, who was Miss Josephine Houghteling of Chicago, and the bottom portrait is that of Miss Mary Canfield, her daughter by a former marriage. A pet dog asleep in Mrs. Griswold's room was overcome first by chloroform.

because they smoked the cigars of their unwitting host, Mr. Griswold had two humidor on his table, one containing cigars for which he pays $12 a hundred, another for which he paid $40. They selected perfects from the latter humidor, smoking several.

Seemingly one of the band made an excursion to the den of Mr. Griswold in the west wing of the house. There an examination was made of the contents of several leather cases. When it was found they contained only fishing reels they were left there.

All the circumstances point to the fact that it was decided to essay another search of the second floor. The room of Miss Canfield was entered.

Girl Said: "Who Is There?"
"It seemed to me that I saw a strange presence in the room," she said last evening in describing her experience. "Out of a sound sleep I awoke and sat up in bed. Although I sat up suddenly I could not seem to shake off a feeling of stupor. However, I managed to call out: 'Who is there?'"

"There was no answer, but through my senses penetrated the idea that someone had slipped out of the room. However, before I could think it over the heavy languor possessed me and I fell back on my pillow. I don't know how long afterward it was when I was able to raise my head again, but I switched on the light and looked at my watch. It was a quarter to 5. I looked about the room and nothing seemed to be amiss. So in the belief that I had dreamt the whole thing I went back to sleep."

BLACKMAIL VICTIMS LOOK UPON BROWN

Persons Caught in Mann Act Game Try to Identify Latest Prisoner.

IS HELD IN $15,000 BAIL

Woman One of Those Who Paid Tribute to Band in New Jersey.

Several blackmail victims, whose names have not yet been revealed by the Government, were in the Federal Building yesterday to look over James A. Brown, who was arraigned before Commissioner Houghton and held in default of $15,000 bail to await further examination next Tuesday. Brown was charged by Special Agent Underhill with conspiring with two others to impersonate Federal officers in Atlantic City in September, 1915.

John C. Knox, Assistant United States Attorney, informed the Commissioner that Brown's presence was necessary in New Jersey to answer the charge of conspiracy. Brown asked that all proceedings be postponed for one week so that he might procure counsel. He said he had no money, but hoped that friends would come to his aid. The Commissioner granted his request.

The names of the victims alleged to have been blackmailed by Brown and others threatening them with arrest under the Mann act were still kept a secret by the Federal officers yesterday. William O'Leary, in charge of the bureau of investigation for this district, said he had information that the band conspired with the Atlantic City conspirators divided about $40,000 among them which they squeezed out of their frightened victims.

Woman in One Case.
O'Leary said that Brown was concerned in two cases in New Jersey, one in an Atlantic City hotel and another in a town still unnamed. Mr. Knox corroborated this much later, adding that in one of the cases a woman was involved. Knox, however, denied that in either of these plots any of the women concerned had been working in conjunction with the blackmailing band.

In both instances the blackmailers, as far as the information now in the hands of the Department of Justice reveals, followed their prey from other cities or hanging about the hotels, discovered these plots any of the women concerned had been working in conjunction with the blackmailing band.

Grand Jury proceedings will be commenced immediately in New Jersey in the two cases.

Mr. Griswold Noted Sportsman.
Mr. Griswold, a member of an old New York family, has been known as a sportsman, as a turfman, and a huntsman. He is devoted to all outdoor sports and has written "Sports on Land and Water." He has a string of race horses and is a member of the Meadow Brook and Pine Brook clubs. One of his sisters became the Baroness von Sternberg of Munich, another was wedded to Schuyler Van Rensselaer and a third is the wife of Harold de Rausch.

He was married to the widow of A. Cass Canfield in London in 1907. Both have been prominent figures in the New York social world. Recently they purchased the residence of Oakleigh Thorpe at Park avenue and Seventy-third street. In addition to their Roslyn home they have an estate in Bar Harbor, Me.

Later in the morning it was found that the side doors nearest to their automobile and drove across the grass to the turnpike leading to New York.

One of the maids, beginning her duties at 6 o'clock, discovered the burglary. She found the empty jewel cases behind the curtain and went into the room of Mrs. Griswold. She had much difficulty in arousing her mistress.

Word of the loss was sent to the local police and Sheriff Stephen Pettit of Nassau county went to the house. However, early in the day Mr. and Mrs. Griswold decided to put their whole reliance upon the New York police. They motored into town. At first Commissioner Woods said the crime was beyond his jurisdiction, but yielding to the argument that apparently it was of Manhattan origin and that the local police probably might find some of the loot in New York pawnshops he assigned Inspector Gray to the case.

List of Stolen Jewels.
The three detectives drove back with Mrs. Griswold and from 2 o'clock until 6 questioned her servants and made a survey of the house. Mrs. Griswold, with the assistance of her maid, made an inventory of her losses and this list was sent to all New York pawnshops. It follows:

Brooch, large diamond, three carats, surrounded by small diamonds. Pendant, large pearl set in diamonds. Brooch, exactly matching the above. Brooch, large turquoise, with one carat diamond on each side. Green-black pearl ring, set in platinum, surrounded by tiny diamonds. Pink pearl ring, set in platinum, surrounded by tiny diamonds.
